-THE -RED AND WHITE REVIEW

Published by the students of Hull High School 1961-1962

The principal's message

Cato, a Roman poet, long ago said, "The best way to keep good acts in memory is to refresh them with new."

Just two years ago our first yearbook was published. That was a real accomplishment for a student body of our size. This year's edition-our second-was undertaken by an enthusiastic committee and staff whom I congratulate most sincerely for their commendable efforts.

In the years to come the minds and memories of all students will, I am sure, be re-awakened by leafing through its pages in search of a certain classmate's face, a basketball team's picture or perhaps the face of someone who taught them when they were very young.

Now, speaking particularly to our graduates, I should like to think that I have left a few verbal footprints in the sand. What follows here may by chance help you to face life with firmer step and a more optimistic sense of 'bien être'.

Twenty years ago Smuts said that humanity 'has struck its tents and is once more on the march'. We need young, vigorous minds who will refuse to surrender to discouragement, young people who will plunge on to lead the bewildered manks forward to a place where we can banish our great curses, such as war, hunger, and disease. What happens anywheretoday matters everywheresuch is the result of our giant scientific steps. The next generation--yours-will need to be guided by those possessing intelligence, faith, good will, and courage. Too many of us in the past, have been trained to imitate, to follow and to conform. You will, I hope, reject many maps and charts and become explorers. By doing this you will, of course, meet both failures and successes, but never question your own courage to depart from precedent and to be a pioneer when you feel it necessary. The gyroscope in your conscience will at once steady your course.

On the foundations of what I hope you have learned so far, you can, if you will, fashion a better world. The great use of life is to spend it for something that outlasts it. You are our future. In you we place our trust to take up the challenging task of reconciling our rapid technological advances and social progress and bringing them into alignment and harmony with all that is best for our troubled world. Reserve a big space in your adult minds for human kindness. A doctor whom I once knew and admired had this motto on the office wall:

"It may be the big heads that rule the world but it's the big hearts that make it fit to live in." I am very pleased to note that publishing our yearbook will undoubtedly become an annual custom. I shall look forward through the years with a great deal of pride to successes which will come to you. Regardless of set backs which are bound to come to us all at times, I feel confident that you firmly believe that "life is worth living". As Austin, an English poet of the early 1900's put it:

"While there is one untrodden tract For intellect or will, And men are free to think or act, Life is worth living still."

Dedication

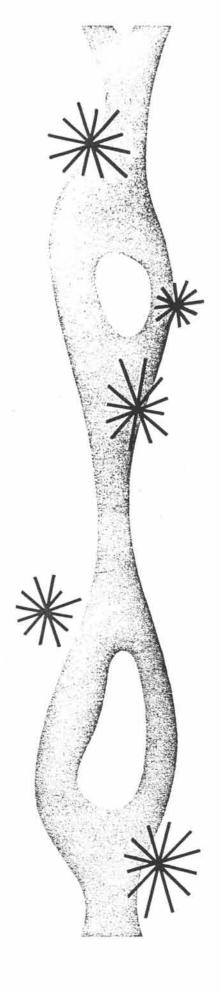

This edition of the Year Book is respectfully dedicated to Mrs. Hazel S. Sallywhose keen perception and understanding of children have been reflected in her dealings with the pupils of Hull Intermediate School and of Hull High School.

Mrs. Sally has long been associated with our school and its activities, and during the years of her association has endeared herself to all with whom she has come in contact.

It was with deep regret that we learned of Mrs. Sally's intention to retire, but this feeling was alleviated by the realization that she is entitled to a well-earned rest, and an opportunity for relaxation.

It is the sincere wish of the staff and pupils, both past and present, that she may have many years in which to enjoy her retirement.

GRADE II CHARACTER SKETCHES

KAREN BROWN:

"If you take my advice".

Karen is the "Dear Abby" of Grade eleven. She's the expert on boyfriend-girlfriend problems. What's more important, Karen plans to become a teacher and since she likes kids so much, we're sure she'll make the best!

SANDRA BROWN:

"Who's a bad influence??"

Sandy has been at Hull High for a good number of years. She participates in many sports, but is best known for her basketball tactics. She won the "Best Girl Athlete" trophy for '59-'60. Future? Undecided.

BRUCE BURNETT:

"I'm running out of excuses".

Bruce, another tall fellow of Grade eleven, is forever late for school. He likes the colour of the late slips. The remedy for this fault - he's going to make it legal by being president of some company. All the best, Bruce.

ROBERT DELANEY:

"I got it, sir!"

Second time around is always better, eh Bob? Bob is another of our "brilliant geometry students with easy proofs." He is well known for his comical jokes and wit. His future? Unknown! Good luck!

EDGAR ELLIOTT:

"It's not me; it's David".

Though Edgar has been at Hull High for several years his heart and thoughts are still in Shawville....... "no better place." One of his daily activities is arguing with David. His future? Shawville, of course.

Jane Erichsen:

"Though she gives the impression of being shy There's more to this girl than meets the eye."

Jane is one of the fortunate people who have seen Paris skies. She is a keen student and we know she will do well as Jane carries many books home everynight. Next year Jane plans to study journalism. Luck!

LYLE GAINSFORD:

"My proof's lot's easier, sir."

Lyle, one of our new imports, must be a descendant of Euclid. His geometry proofs are always "easier" but complicated. We hope your pupils will be able to understand your reasoning, Lyle, because we can't. Good Luck!

GLENN GUILBAULT:

"Up, up the long, delirious burning blue

Where no other man ever flew."

Glenn will probably be the first man on the moon. His vocabulary consists of words concerning space travel, missiles, and rockets. We may read about your world success, some day, Glenn. Good luck!

"I'm the editor, and I say not"

Pep and wit sum up this petite gal from Gatineau. Judy's good humour has added life to Hull High since her arrival last year. She is a top rate student and plans to continue her education. We know that success is inevitable. Luck, Judyl

BEVERLEY ILES:

"Oh, to be finished school".

Bev looks the ideal secretary type - neat, calm, and efficient. She'll probably be chased around the boss' desk several times, no doubt. We hope you find time to type your wedding invitations, Bev.

KATHY KEHL:

"The pen, my dear is mightier than the sword."

Kathy has many activities. They include drama, playing the accordion and I hear that fencing has also been undertaken. Kathy has become a T.V. personality appearing on "High Time" and "It's your World".

BILL LAMB:

"Great men die young, that's funny, I feel fine."

Bill is a very active student. He participates in basketball, hockey, and football. In spite of all this Bill manages his school work well. He plans to continue his education. Luck, to a real sport.

J

SKIP LEBRUN:

"Scalpel, tweezers, scissors."

Skippy, our big, big member of Grade eleven is the famous basketball player and scorer. Skip could be heading for a career as a prominent surgeon judging from his actions in Biology class. The best of luck to you! Dr Lebrun!

HEATHER MILLER:

"What an interesting case!"

Heather travels from Gatineau daily. She gained her fame in grade eleven by being the first girl to wear contact lenses. Heather has proved herself to be a keen Biologist in many dissecting classes. She intends to continue her education and undertaxe the glamorous life of an airline stewardess. So best wishes.

ERICH NOORTHOEK:

"4 HCI / MnO2--- MnCi2/CI2 / 2H20

Erick is going to be a famous chemist if his actions indicate his success in the future. Experiments fill Erick's time and bring him fame and satisfaction. Good luck!

KEVIN O'KEEFE

"If silence is golden

Kevin is rich."

Kevin is the quiet one of Grade eleven, a noisy class, to be sure. He is quite the commercial student and we can see him in the future as a prominent member of a large company. The best of luck, Kevini

STIRLING O'ROURKE:

"Grease, wrench, and oil."

Though cars occupy much of Stirling's spare time, he manages his studies well. However, I hear that "French" is his pet peeve. His interest in cars will perhaps lead him to manufacture the cars we will drive. Best of luck, Stirling!

MARK OWENS:

"One, two, three, HIKE!"

Mark travels from East Templeton to join our grade eleven class daily. His favorite sports include hockey and football. Mark is one of the few quiet members of our class, but outside who really knows.

BILLY PRESLEY:

"If I have to, I have to."

Bill doesn't enjoy school but he knows it's a necessity. So he does it up in style, driving his own car. Bill would make another Henry Ford, perhaps incorporated with Stirling. Best of luck in your enterprises.

HILARY RADMORE:

"Yeall Hull High!"

Though it is only Hilary's second year at Hull, she has many friends. She is the only cheerleader in Grade eleven and is well known for her pleasing personality and helping hand. Hilary plans to continue her education. Good luckl

JUDY RADMORE:

"Who's running this, you, or me?

Judy Radmore, our head girl, has been at Hull High since Grade I. Judy is the top basketball scorer. She is working hard towards her goal as a teacher. We know success will be hers.

LORNE REID:

"Youneverlearn, unless you ask."

Lorne is the inquisitive member of Grade eleven. He is forever questioning the teachers, sometimes stumping them. Lorne is interested in science and we're sure he'll discover a Reid's law. Good luck, Lorne!

ANNE ROY:

"You're up at six, when you live in the sticks."

Anne is a fair-haired miss, also from Gatineau. She has found that getting dimes out of public phones is a time - consuming affair. All her friends agree as long as Anne's around, there's never a dull moment. Best wishes in future years, Anne.

DAVID ROY:

"It's not me; it's Edgar."

David Roy is forever telling the teachers he's not to blame - it's always Edgar's fault. He participates in baseball and football and would certainly make a good driving instructor. The best of luck to you, David.

ANN SEEMAN:

"Life is just fun and more fun".

Ann Seeman always manages to look fresh and pretty no matter how hard the trig problem. Ann enjoys fun and parties but she realizes the need for an education. next year she hopes to go to college. We know Ann will always be successfull.

INNA TOLSTOY:

"If it wasn't for trig".

Inna Tolstoy, a pretty mademoiselle, is a top Grade eleven student but she has a weakness for a trigonometry Inna plans to further her education and we can see her successful in any field she enters. The best of luck in the future, Inna.

FRANS VANDER GREFT:

"A good teacher is a relative thing depending on the ability of a student to use it." Frans can be detected by his ever-present transistor. He is an ardent cyclist as well as an excellent essay writer. His "brilliant" geometry proofs have become renowned. Best wishes in the future years.

NANCY WALSH:

"Scalpel, forceps, scissors, coming up."

Hailing from Rupert, Nancy is the only medical-minded student in our class. She plans to continue her studies at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal. Though this is Nancy's first year at Hull, she has made many friends. Everyone wishes you the best in future years, Nancy.

Congratulations

and best wishes.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

I should like, first of all, to extend my congratulations to the yearbook staff on the wonderful job they have done in making this year's edition a complete success.

Mr. Doering, the staff director of the yearbook, Judy Hyde, the editor, and Inna Tolstoy, assistant editor, all deserve special thanks for the tremendous amount of work they have put into it and also for relinquishing so much of their free time to work on it.

The year began successfully, the first event being the Victory Dance which followed the Students' Council elections. The dances throughout the year, sponsored by each grade in turn, have been equally successful. We have always had good crowds and of course, good profits.

The Chocolate Bar Drive, our one fund raising effort, deserves special mention. A profit of $500 was earned by the students in this campaign. I should like to thank the student body for their support in making both the dances and the Chocolate Bar sales a success.

Best Wishes to the Graduates from

For the younger grades a Hallowe'en party was organized in October and an Ice Carnival in February.

Special thanks go to Mrs. Christie for the wonderful assistance she has been in every way at any time when we needed advice.

I would also like to thank Mr. Mc Quarrie and Mrs. Wallace for the fine job they have done as coaches of our teams in basketball, hockey, and track and field.

To Mr. Mac Lelland I should like to extend special thanks for we could have had no better assistance, co-operation and encouragement from any other principal.

I hope that the presidents who succeed me will have as wonderful a council and staff to work with as I have had in the past year.

I wish everyone good luck in his exams, and a good summer.

In 1959-60, it was decided to separate the Academic and Commercial courses, which meant the establishment of a complete Commercial course. For this, a good deal of credit goes to Mrs. Evelyn Burden, the teacher of the Commercial course.

Up to Grade 8, the first year of high school, the pupils all take the same subjects. In Grade 9, however, those wishing to enter the business world begin their commercial training.

In Grade 8, there are only three Commercial subjects -- Bookkeeping, Shorthand, and Typewriting. The rest of the course is made up of the four compulsory subjects -- English Litterature, English Composition, Oral French, and Written French, As these are the only subjects taken, each one is considered compulsory and the pupils must pass them all.

In Grade 10 and 11, the course is just the same, except for one addition -- Office Practice is included as one of the Commercial subjects, which, along with the four compulsory subjects, brings the total marks to 800.

The course is extended over three years, because it gives pupils more time to perfect the skills of Shorthand, Typing and Business Machines, and the art of Bookkeeping.

Employer: Why do you ask for a raise?

Employee: Well sir, I wouldn't ask for a raise, but somehow my kids found out that other families ate three times a day!

Do you want double spacing on the carbon copies, too?

BASKETBALL

Following a year of success in the Western Quebec ague, the 1961-1962 season was begun on November 1, 1961

From then until the first league game, practices were ld after school on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays. On vember 24, Shawville High School played at Hull. Our ys played a tremendous game, defeating Shawville 61-17. r the second game Hull travelled to Aylmer on December Again our boys were successful and defeated Aylmer -28. The last game of 1961 resulted in a Hull defeat of ickingham to the tune of 49-15.

At Christmas, the team received more honours when b Delaney became high-scorer in the League and Skip brun placed third.

The first game of the new year found Aylmer visiting ill. In a veryhard-fought and fast game, Aylmer succeeded downing Hull 42-30. In the two remaining games, Hull feated Buckingham and Shawville by 42-16 and 55-52 spectively.

As well as league games many practice games were so played against such teams as Almont High School, ull Technical School, Ottawa University High School, and isher Park Juniors. The team enjoyed these games and veryone agrees that they were beneficial to the team.

Although Hull did not win the Western Quebec Trophy, m sure no one will disagree with the fact that throughout ne year our team displayed the best of sportsmanship.

I know I speak for all of us when I congratulate Mr. IcQuarrie for his fine job of coaching and his encouragement the team.

VOLLEYBALL

This year, under the direction of Mr. McQuarrie, the Senior boys organized four volleyball teams which competed among themselves. The captains of the teams were Bill among themselves. The captains of the teams were but Lamb, David Ross, Grant McClelland, and Bob Delaney. Several games were played followed by a round-robin between Bill Lamb's and Bob Delaney's teams. The winner was Bob Delaney, whose team members are: Mike Hall,

FOOTBALL

After a very successful first year of inter-mural touch football (Senior) a second year was started in '61. The previous season Skip Lebrun's team defeated Bob Delaney's for the Championship.

In the 1961 season teams and schedules were organized better and the season started earlier. There were four teams under the captains Dave Ross, Donny Inglis, Richard Millar, and Brian Saunders. Every day from 12:30 - 1.00 P.M. a game was played and by mid-season the standings read, from the leader downward, Saunders, Ross, Inglis, and Millar. The scoring leaders were Skip Lebrun and

About this time the Millar team disintegrated and it was decided to combine it with the Inglisteam, thus evening

Play-off time approached and the Inglis and Ross teams met in a semi-final sudden death game to decide which team would play against the winners of the regular season, the Saunders team. It was a hard-fought struggle which wasn't decided until Dave Ross, captain of his team, romped for a touchdown.

Ross' team now met Saunders' in a best 2-out-of-3 finals. In the first game, Bob Delaney boomed a single point to lead the Saunders' team to victory. In the second game Ross' team came on to victory from a 6-6 tie to take the game when Dave Ross kicked a single. The third game was a thriller and ended in a 1-1 tie necessitating a replay. Ross went on to victory in the fourth game with a comparative slaughter of 2-0.

The season was entirely successful and hearty thanks are given to Mr. MacQuarrie and this author hopes that the league will be continued.

I.Q. with Alex Trubek

This year several of the students of Hull High have participated in radio and television programs.

"High Time", an inter-scholastic quiz program brought rictory for the four contestants -- Katly Kehl, Inna plstoy, Judy Hyde, and Bill Lamb, against the Aylmer team. Our second try on February 6 was unsuccessful but all the same, very enjoyable.

On January 30, after "High Time" was taped, Inna Tolstoy, Ann Seeman, Judy Hyde, and Bill Lamb went to Lasalle Academy to compete against the Ottawa Technical High School on the radio program "LQ." We lost by the score of 140-80, but it was a memorable experience.

On February 10, Kathy Kehl, Sandra Brown, and Glenn Guilbault represented Hull High School on ''It's Your World'' on CJOH. They came out on top with a score of 15.75.

On March 17, Hull returned again to compete against Cobden and Glebe for the second time with Ann French replacing Sandy. They placed second. The Ottawa University team won the Citizen award. The members agreed that it aroused their interest in world affairs.

Thanks go to Mr. Doering who arranged all the programs for us and gave us his time to coach the various teams.

CHRISTMAS CONCERT

photos by Don Quinton

Throughout the school year of 1961-1962, Hull Protestant High School has had numerous activities which have been enjoyed by many.

OCTOBER:

Victory Dance

The Hull Protestant High School held their first dance of the School year on October 4, 1961, in honour of Glenn Guilbault and Judy Radmore, our head boy and head girl. CKOY disk jockey Danny Roman and his friends provided the entertainment, giving away 160 records. A satisfactory profit of $75 was collected and enthusiasm was indicated by an exceptionnally good turnout.

JANUARY:

The Frost Frolic

On January 20, 1962, Grade 11 put on a dance they called "The Frost Frolic". Bob Simpson's orchestra, provided the music to a mixture of all types of dancing, from polka to waltzes, a change from the ever-so-common "rock and twist". Among the evening entertainment provided, there were twist contests and spot dances. The dance was later livened up when a brigade of balloons fell from a net above the dancers, creating alively atmosphere for a school dance.

MARCH:

Shamrock Shuffle

Green and white decorations, pleasant music, and a friendly atmosphere created a perfect spot for an enjoyable evening on March 17, at Hull Protestant High School auditorium.

The dance put on by the "Yearbook Committee" was put on to honour St. Patrick's Day. During the evening, spot dances were held and also a twist contest. Mike Scally was the D.J.

The Yearbook Committee judged and awarded the prizes for the girl and boy with the most green on to Billy Maxwell and Gillian Buttemer.

The net profit was $85, which will be used in advancing the yearbook.

The Shamrock Shuffle was in all a highly successful dance.

APRIL:

The Bunny Hop

The Bunny Hop, which took place on April 14, 1962, was the last of the dances for the school year. The turnout was good and a substantial profit was made.

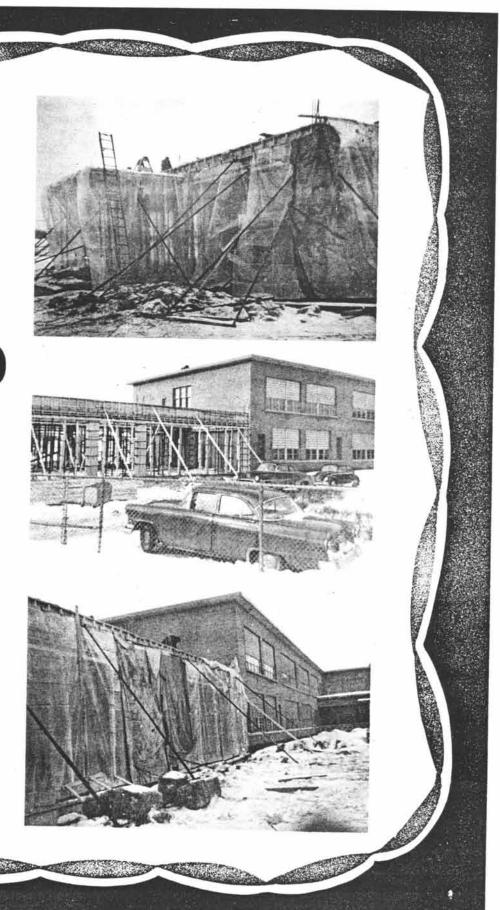

The next forthcoming social affair will be the graduation prom.

"I.Q."

"Don't you think," father asked mother, "that our son got his intelligence from me?"

"Of course," she answered. "I've still got mine."

"STIR VERY LIGHTLY"

"Farnsworth," said the professor, "give the formula for water."

"H-I-J-K-L-M-N-O," the student answered.

"Ridiculous, Whoever told you that?"

"You did. You said it was H to O."

"ON THE FENCE"

"Do you have trouble making up your mind?" the psychiatrist asked.

"Well," said the patient, "Yes and no."

"ADD A DASH OF SOYA"

The bandits marched into the Chinese restaurant and held out a machine gun under the owner's nose.

"Give us all your money," they demanded.
"To take out?" asked the Oriental blandly.

"OBSERVANT"

SLAVE DAY

On two consecutive Fridays in February, "Slave Days" were held. These days were sponsored and organized by Hull High's cheerleaders. The purpose was to raise money to pay the Students' Council for the cheerleaders' sweaters. On the first "Slave Day", each girl could buy one boy to be her slave for the day for the price of 25 cents. Each slave had to do as his master commanded. Then the boys got their revenge. The next week, they bought girls as slaves. The same rules applied to both days. The idea proved successful as $26 were made.

"IMPORTANT: READ THIS CAREFULLY"

Everything comes with directions these days. No household appliance is complete without a ten-page booklet explaining how to put it together, where to install it, which way to wind it, when to change the filters, and what to do if it starts humming. It's hard enough to cope with the gadgets themselves, let alone trying to understand the directions.

You can't do anything any more without being told how. There are shaving instructions with your electric razor, refill instructions with your ballpoint pen, drycleaning instructions with your shirt, and zipper instructions with your pants. A tin of pills contains more literature nowadays than pills. I realize that the manufacturers are trying to make my life simple, but I'm getting more confused all the time.

Even familiar products arrive with an elaborate set of directions now. The other day I bought a tube of toothpaste, and it said on the box. "To remove cap, turn counterclockwise by gripping knurl. Important: do not tilt." Now I've learned to open such a tube fourteen years ago, but the more I studied this description, the harder the operation seemed. I got a good firm grip on the knurl and turned counterclockwise until I began tilting. Finally the bottom of the tube split open and the contents squirted down my sleeve. Fortunately there's still a little paste left in the old tube, and its cap has been missing for weeks.

Take garden seeds for example. Time was when all you had to do was stick them in the ground. Not in this modern age. We do it scientifically. Today the packet reads: "Plant to depth of 1-1/2 times seed in well-drained pliable soil between May and June (northern Ontario) and thin to 4 inches after ten days". Prescriptions on medicine bottles are just as obscure (how can you take ONE pill three times daily?), and first-aid instructions have me completely baffled. By the time I figure out how to peel open a bandage, I've almost bled to death.

Or take the case of an uncle of mine who purchased a cuckoo clock in Germany. "Take first out the two wirecramps which hold together the bellows," the translation said, "and hang onto the pendulumwire the pendulum with the weights from the chains to tick straightly." He worked that out, and then he read: "The call of the cuckoo can be fetched, without that the clock strikes wrong, by pulling at the ring which hangs at the left in a string." He solved the whole problem by glancing at his watch and cuckooing every hour on the hour.

On the other hand, I can give directions very clearly. If you're planning to drive to our house, for instance, just stop at the filling station and ask the attendant how to get here. He's the one who always tells me.

HOW TO BUY A USED CAR

Never before in the history of the world have there been so many cars on the nation's highways and byways. The automobile has become a significant part of everyone's life and is rapidly becoming a necessary article for every modern household.

There are still some people, however, who do not have a car and are thinking of obtaining one by fair means or foul. It is to this minority of bus-riders and hitch-hikers that I am about to impart much valuable knowledge obtained after living on this piston-driven earth for seventeen years.

Before buying a used car, you should look in the newspaper for reputable used-car dealers. When you find one you are interested in, proceed to find his lot. It will most likely be on an unknown street or in the dealer's back yard.

Walk into the lot casually, but with determination, and begin to look over the automobile you think might suit you. After being there for a few minutes, the dealer will carelessly saunter over from his office, where he has been partaking of refreshment. The dealer will begin to expound on the qualities of the car.

Completely ignore what he says and begin your own inspection of the vehicle. Kick all four tires to see if they fall off. Make sure all the windows contain glass. Check for essentials such as engine, steering wheel, brakes, clutch, gas pedal, roof, floor, wheels, and a cigarette lighter.

The next step to take is the test driving of the vehicle. Before doing this, however, make sure that the dealer signs a document absolving you of all blame if the motor should fall out during the test.

When you bring the car back, if you do, complain of some defect in the workings of the automobile. The dealer will become quite indignant and reply that the car is in A-1 shape. He may even go so far as to show you the garage where he repairs the merchandise.

You now have a chance to steal some of his wrenches. This is purely a business matter since the dealer will overcharge you for the car anyway.

If you have decided to buy the car, you go into his office, to draw up the necessary papers and haggle over the price.

While you are haggling, show a pair of brass knuckles occasionally. I have found this very effective in bringing down the price of the car.

After setting the price and paying for the car, you may drive away knowing you have made a good deal. Later on you may sell the wrenches for gas.

You have now become a statistic; a man with a car, with a future and all that goes with it, such as gas, hospital and insurance bills.

MYSTERY UNEXPLAINED

"All right, all right I'm coming," I cried pleadingly at the insistent pounding. Candle in hand I felt my way down the winding staircase to the great oaken door, Immediately the knocking ceased, and all was quiet throughout the entire house. Curiously I opened the mail slot and stared into the pitch darkness of the chilly night. No one was to be seen. The old clock in the livingroom struck the crucial hour of twelve. I wheeled about, flabbergasted, with my back to the door and an expectant eye on the living room. The red carpeting which covered the winding staircase, and most of the interior of the house seemed to run together and blind me temporarily. Ifelt a chilly draught run down my spine, and the corridor into which I stared seemed to become darker.

Bewildered, I unlatched the massive door, and took a cautious step onto the porch. I was met by the cool breeze of the raw night, and the endless sound of the winds whistling through the majestic fir trees around the house. The cool grey western sky glared down upon me, and I had the feeling that someone was watching me intently, I scanned the premises thoroughly, but nothing out of the ordinary was to be seen. Just as I was about to enter the house, a sudden gust of wind struck me from behind, causing the door to shut in my face and the candle to go out. Frustrated, I dropped the candle holder and lunged at the door, pulling in vain at the huge knob. Suddenly from the cemented walk came the sound of a person walking with a cane, and with one foot dragging helplessly on the firm payement. Somewhere upstairs the light from one of the rooms reflected on the glistening grass. A nauseating odor seemed to surround me, and everything went blank before my eyes. Half insane, I lunged across the lawn and darted for the roadway. Suddenly something tripped me, and I hit the ground with enough impact to send me sprawling into the bushes.

When I regained consciousness, a large understanding face was glaring back at me. I looked hurriedly around, and found that I was lying in my own bedroom above the staircase. I later discovered that the milkman had found me the next morning, tangled in the rose garden about twenty yards from the front porch. He observed that the front door, as well as my bedroom window was wide open. What I tripped over on the lawn is still a mystery to me, for there is no object or obstruction of any kind on the entire front premises. Nothing was stolen from the house, and no fingerprints whatsoever could be found anywhere. Also unexplained was the peculiar sound on the walk. The only possible explanation to give to this weird experience is that it is far beyond the human ability to understand. Such incidents should not be spoken of today without evidence, because our inability to understand sometimes leads people to believe insanity on behalf of the teller.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED

Though it appeared to the passerby as merely an insignificant little island, holding nothing more than a weather-beaten light-house, this retreat meant more to one lonely old man. It was home. How he loved to sit perched upon his rickety stool and with his newly found friend, a wayward sea-gull, watch the cruel sea, as it sucked away at the sand. The powerful, grasping undertow would seize the pebbles and toss them out to sea. Later on, they would be washed ashore, the erosion having carved strange and fascinating designs in them. On many nights the old man had watched the mist roll infrom the waters and blanket the surroundings in a cover of dew. On these quiet, peaceful nights he sat completely happy, watching and listening to his constant companion, the sea.

Then suddenly, one night as the deep purple thunderheads echoed their warning, a slight wispy breeze crept in, gathering more and more speed. A light rain fell at first and soon it was pounding the salt-sprayed glass of the lighthouse, furiously. The heavens were in a turmoil and the rain fell mercilessly, as the light in the tower became fainter and fainter. From somewhere out of the confused night, came the lingering wail of a haunting foghorn. The dim light faded into the enveloping blackness, flickered and then died out. The triumphant sea lashed madly out at the island; the savage wind howled in circles about it, and the proud lighthouse stood in darkness.

A quiet dawn broke over the horizon and Mother Nature peeped down to view the cost of her previous night's anger. An eerie stillness hung about the island and the slimy seaweed lay strewn over protruding boulders. A sharp stench of dead fish struck one in the face and decayed driftwood lay cluttering the beach. There was no sound, except for one lone, mournful cry and on glancing towards the aged tower, Mother Nature saw that faithful sea gull hovering over the shattered beacon. Lying limp and lifeless over this same light, was the gnarled and worn hand of an old man, who along with this light had given his life. This "insignificant" little island with its lonely "insignificant" little man, had for many years been playing a very "significant" part in the lives of others.

A STARTLING INTRODUCTION TO A PARTRIDGE One day my friend and I decided to take a hike through the woods. We started off eagerly, looking forward to an adventurous day. In the middle of the day we came across Some partridges. Both partridges flew off, but then we saw a baby partridge. This bird couldn't fly as it had a broken wing, so I picked it up and went back to where my friend was and told him what had happened. Carrying this pest was a hard job. It kept pecking at my finger until it drew blood. Then I gave it to my friend and it started to coo loudly, and flap its wings wildly. When we got home we mended it s wing, took it back, and laid it carefully on the ground. Looking back we saw both birds come back cooing Joudly to see their young one back, safe and sound, These birds have beautiful plumage and we were glad to help one of nature's children. This was my first and only introduction to one of nature's most beautiful birds — the partridge.

Do you believe in ghosts? Two years ago I didn't. but when our family moved I quickly changed my mind. The children near our new home told me a local legend about a ramshackle old house in the woods near town. "Inside," they said, "is a ghost that devours anybody who dares enter the run-down home."

Although my disbelief in ghosts was sincere, I couldn't help going to investigate the story. Opening the door and seeing nothing, I proceeded to look around, when suddenly a board snapped behind me! Never did I tump as high in all my life! This was just a preview of what was to come.

Entering the bedroom I saw nothing, but suddenly there was a screeching sound coming from the atticl Not staying around long enough to find out what the noise was I beat a hasty retreat. I'llnever knowwhether the sound was a ghost or just the wind.

The first passenger coaches were uncomfortable and dusty. These days the cars, buses, planes, and boats are very comfortable. Many long years ago, travel was very slow. Now cars whiz by at sixty miles an hour, boats take only a few days to go hundreds of miles. Planes travel faster than sound. From animal power to engines, people have worked together to make travel as easy and enjoyable as possible.

These improvements took time but over centuries men and women have worked together toward the betterment of transportation by land, sea, and air.
